SEEKING RELIEF

IN DEATH FROM THE WOES OF LIFE.

A Danish Girl Leaps Off the Suspension Bridge Into the River with Fatal Intent—She Is Taken Out Alive but Helped Injured—No Motive Known for the Bank Act.

Last evening about 6:30 o'clock Carrie Hansen, a Danish woman employed as a domestic in the family of Mr. E. C. Mitchell, of the People's Bank, attempted suicide by jumping into the river from the suspension bridge.

It was still daylight when she made the rash attempt, and objects could be distinctly seen. Fireman Tom Kenny, of the P. W. D. Ky., had just put his engine away and was standing on the platform of the presence of the crowd which gathered there. When suddenly they saw a dark body shoot down from about the centre of the bridge and striking the water, make a tremendous splash.

Without stopping to speculate as to what it was that had fallen, they rushed down to the wharfbort, unlashed a skiff and pulled out quickly, where they did so blood and water. As they reached it they found that it was a woman, and that she lay just over her ankle for the last time. They pulled her into the boat, where she lay on her back and was gulshed from her mouth and nose. Pulling vigorously for the shore, they landed off at the side the Siannom House.

THE DANISH GIRL RESCUED.

Here a large crowd had assembled. The woman was hastily removed to the top of the bank and rolled across a barrel while nurses were dispatched for the police and a physician. Several police officers were soon on hand, and a large crowd that later increased to large dimensions.

Dr. J. C. Hupp was found on the street and arrived just after the police. Under his direction the woman was removed to Hartley's wine shop. A mattress was placed on the floor by the stove, in which there was a roaring fire, and after the clothing had been stripped from her she lay on the mattress and bottles and coarse towels were then applied to her face because aware of what was going on about her.

Up to this time no one knew who she was but about half past six o'clock Mr. Mitchell arrived and he was hurriedly taken to his home. Her face was black and blue, and so swollen and battered up that she could see with difficulty. She must have struck the water or some other hard object, for her head was broken awful; in fact, wonder was expressed that her neck was not broken.

AT A LOSS FOR A MOTIVE.

Mr. Mitchell said that she had been in his employ about three months, and had always appeared contented. He had never before imagined what had induced her to do so she had done. She was engaged in preparatory supper work at his residence on the South Side, and was known to him as "Mammy," and left, and lived on a callio wagon on the North Side, directed where her brother could be found.

As regards the motive, Hansen, an employee at the People's Bank, has been in this country four years. He is married and lives on the South Side. He brought his wife over from his home about four months ago, and was found about a week ago, and rescued Unruh's in a very agitated state of mind. His sister refused to resign and was threatened to die, and he had no idea as to what he was doing. He was frightened at his wife's behavior, and he thought she was at his house and expressing herself as being very much pleased with her place, and he was told that she was safe and happy, and he remained at his home until his last night and she remained at his home.

SERIOUS INJURIES SUSTAINED.

Dr. Hupp worked hard to bring the woman back to life; at one time there was a reaction, and it was feared she would not rally again, but she recovered from the shock, and at any time and result in death.

The woman is twenty-four years old. She is short and stout in stature. Her features are somewhat coarse, and she is well calculated to impress one with the idea that she was at all sensitive. It is whispered, however, that in this case, as in nearly all cases, there is a man at the bottom of her troubles.

Only three or four people were on the bridge when the woman leaped. She hurriedly took her seat in the car, and she crossed the bridge, then climbed up on the big guard and without a moment's hesitation plunged downward.

THE ATTEMPT WAS NOT SUICIDE.

She is the fifth person known to have jumped from this bridge. The first was a woman, Mary Drake, in 1858. She flattered down on a cake of ice and was taken out near the foot of the bridge.

During the war, a volunteer camped on the island desiring to come to this side for a spree, was overtaken on the bridge by the police, and being a foolhardy man jumped over.

Two women since then have gone over, the last being a young woman who lived at the corner of Second and Third streets, and who three years ago; her body was found at Mounsville. Several cases have been reported of people jumping over, in addition to the above, but they have never been proven.

The Captain Didn't Say It.

Capt. Bennett was met last night, He looked very weary, and, though he hesitated a good deal to say anything, he kept his temper fairly well; but a little newspaper paragraph which appeared last night that I would go to court tomorrow equanimity. I was like:

"Capt. Bennett has determined that the Democratic party must go in this State." He said that he was not a politician, and that his friends think I've said that. I never said anything of the kind, and I do not pay any more attention to politics in running this office than I would to a grocery store or a saloon. Why, five of my deputies are Democrats, and a good many Democrat voters form. If that's intended for a joke I'd rather believe it's a joke. I don't know if you that wrote it knew it was not true when he did it. I have got nothing against the Democracy."

One of the bastionmentaries of the season will be given at Fourth Street M. E. Church to-night.

The Work Goes On.

The fines and costs paid in at Police Court yesterday morning replenished the city treasury. The fine of $100 paid by the thirty-seven cans in addition to those spoken of yesterday, the house of Susan Kaufman, who recently bought out Madam Samson, and the fine of $100 paid by the house Sunday night and the Madame, on eight and two men were arrested. In our case of the mistresses were fined $20 and the men were fined $10 each. At this rate the male visitors the same sum. At this rate the way of the transgressor is not only hard, but expensive.

"FIVE GOOD OLD TIMES,"

A reporter of the INTELLIGENCER had a long talk with Mr. C. J. Mayer in relation to the balls of the present day compared with those of earlier years. Mr. Mayer has taught dancing for a number of years, and is one of the best instructors in the city. He has resumed teaching, after a long rest, at the residence of some of his friends, and is now conducting large classes of young gentlemen and young ladies.

"The manner of managing public balls is not what it used to be," said Mr. Mayer. "There is too much looseness in the way of conducting them; such, for instance, as the invitations and the way they are sent out. In former years the Committee on Invitations was composed of five or six persons who divided their work, laying the town out in three districts. The names of those who were to be invited were put down, but no invitation was given until the entire committee met and scanned the list carefully. If the name of any lady who was considered objectionable was found it was immediately dropped from the list. Of such care is taken. Of course, I speak of balls which have not been a certain exclusiveness practiced on some occasions, I know."

"The manner of the invitations is also different. Some of the invitations are filled out, and the mislaid mailed, and then sent off. In former times the members of the committee used to deliver the invitations in person. They laid the town out, and ladies had company to the ball. If a lady was not already provided with escorts, racks or 'busses called for them. Now it is different. People are invited by parcel post. They would never allow a lady to come alone unless she had an escort."

"The manners in the ball room to-day are so different from those of old times, they say?" Inquired the reporter.

"Yes, I believe they are. I have noticed one bad feature. When a gentleman dances in respect he is obliged to immediately bolt away from her at the end of the dance and leave her to find a seat as best she can. I have seen this done time and time again. It is a disgraceful thing. Young gentlemen with ladies to whom they have just introduced. Of course the ladies are somewhat to blame for this. No real lady would so far forget herself as to become so strident that they have to excuse themselves from strangers or in a measure be wall flowers for the greater part of the evening. Then there is another fault. A gentleman will take great pains to instruct his pupils in the waltz. I have seen couples waltzing whose positions were shocking. There should be a reform in this regard."

"How about the music, these days?"

"Oh, it is good, but the orchestras play encores too frequently. On this account most of the dancers get tired. It is the result of fast playing; but time is given the dancers to execute any steps. Slower music is what is wanted now as much as anything else."

"Do you think there is a revival of the very strict in this regard, and any propriety noticed was remedied at once? You mentioned the fact they were strict in the room."

Mr. Mayer, in further conversation on the subject of a reform in this regard, passed to inquire if his pupils in good manners. "I do not see that," said he, "but perhaps go beyond my right and instruct them how to direct propriety in the room. I divide the girls into two groups, the gentlemen from the board. I noticed that many gentlemen in promenadeing on the streets with ladies do not know what good form dictates. I tell them to precede them in crossing a noisy street. It is the place of the gentleman to always precede the lady—in crossing a street or ascending stairs."

This closed the informal talk, Mr. Mayer inviting the reporter to call around at McLean's Hall some evening and witness the rehearsal of his class.

The fire broke out in the engine, and struck the pipe of the channel, spun on the Ohio side, with the result of sinking the barge loaded with steel rails, the other barge, loaded with iron, and the tugboat, and steamer. Another of the barges upset and dumped its contents, and to be cool, later the tugboat, the Iron Age, aided by the Resolute, succeeded in raising the remaining barges together before reaching Mingo. The loss on barge and damage to rails, will probably amount to $2,000. The rail, of course, cannot be recovered.

WINDMILL VARIETY

IN PRESIDENTIAL PREFERENCES

But Blaine and Lincoln still at the Head—Sherman, Edmunds and Any Other Good Man Fied Far——Clean—A Straw Which Shows Which
May the Presidential Wind Blow.

Further inquiries among the Republican leaders and voters of Wheeling show a little more diversity of opinion as to the best man to nominate and elect for President, but the majority are still for "Jim Blaine and Robert Lincoln." The spirit which characterized those whose views have heretofore been printed in the INTELLIGENCER seems to pervade the entire party in the city; they nearly all have a first and second choice, but after that they are for the Republican nominee, and not one man out of a hundred expresses any antagonism to any candidate named.

A straw was taken among the Republican employees of the Riverside Iron Works yesterday, the candidates for President being: Of these 90 were for Blaine, 1 for Arthur, 6 for Lincoln and 1 for Logan for first choice.

— "Well, I scarcely know who is my choice. As for the other man, I don't think he is a reasonable doubt that we will elect him. I don't think so. I suppose Blaine is the most popular of the candidates named."

— "Maxwell—"Pat me down for James O. Blaine first; any good man will do for the second place. I was for Blaine in 1876 and 1880, and I want 1884 to make him President."

Councilman A. H. Haled—"My preference is for John Sherman; I think he is the safest man. But we have so many good men I don't have time to name them."

— "Equire W. H. Haled—"If they make a good nomination such as my man; and I guess they will."

— "I wonder—"I want a stiff man. With a protective tariff this country would go to pieces."

Alex Forger—"I was for Judge Edmunds four years ago, and I am for Judge Edmunds now. I don't think I have changed. I suppose it is General Grant; and I would prefer Blaine to Grant."

— "The nomination will be for my man, whether it is."

George W. Snyder—"Jim Blaine. I was for Jim Blaine the last time, and am for him now. I believe in Blaine and Lincoln. But I am for the nominee; it is no matter to me who he is."

Joseph Spaid—"I can tell better after the nomination. I was up at Pittsburgh last week and saw many men I know who are Republicans and enthusiastically for Blaine. They are not too. Blaine will suit me very well."

Isiah Werrec—"I think Edmunds is the best man. I don't think I have changed. I was satisfied with Blaine and Bob Lincoln."

A. A. Adam—"Blaine."

Capt. Robert Cowen—"Wherever they nominate I will vote for Lincoln on the ticket, and I haven't much to say for the nominee."

Dr. T. H. Logan—"I am for the nominee. I believe Blaine is my first choice, and I think the Union now stands in the most popular man before the people."

Councilman N. Wilkinson—"I have no preference. The man who is put in nomination is going to vote for it if I'm alive. He has to be to be elected."

Councilman Lewis Jones—"The best man that is out. I am for the nominee. He has a good chance to be elected. I am for the nominee. It is as good a stiff man Blaine, and certainly he's a better flunxer. Lincoln is my second choice."

— "Blaine's my man. I think he is the choice of the people of this country. Arthur is my second choice."

Councilman Rosenberg—"The nominee."

— "I don't know. I believe in Blaine and Lincoln. I was for Blaine my first choice—Blaine and Lincoln."

City Solicitor Erskine—"I believe Edmunds is the best man. I believe in Blaine and Lincoln. I was for Blaine my first choice—Blaine and Lincoln."

D. C. List, Jr.—"Blaine is my man. Blaine and Lincoln will suit me."

MARTIN'S FERRY.

Temperance Convention—Political Preferences—Note.

The temperance convention, held at Commercial Hall last night, was largely attended. H. W. Smith, Esq., president, and T. A. Scott acted as Secretary. The convention was opened with prayer by Rev. Orr; for County Clerk, Charles Lyman. In fact the largest convention ever held in Martin's Ferry.

POLITICAL PREFERENCES.

A. F. Dean, Postmaster—"Am for Blaine."

A. M. Shipman—"Like Dr. Todd can throw up my hat for the nominee, but can throw it up higher for Edmunds than any of the rest."

— "He's not an Ohio man!"

— "That makes no difference. That puts me in mind of a story. During the Garfield election, a Maine gentleman was quoted as spitting at me about the ethics of candidates from States, saying that Ohio was absorbing all the honors."

— "Well, how did you say?"

— "What did I say? That Ohio had enough statesmen in both parties to serve the republic for two hundred years."

— "He's right."

— "He is."

Mr. H. J. Long said he preferred Lincoln over the first place, "but was for the nominee."

Dr. H. R. Osg—"I am for the nominated."

Judge John Cochran—"I am for the man who will win."

Capt. Hiram Smith—"Blaine and Lincoln."

Mayor Mitchell—"Blaine and Lincoln."

— "Schneider, proprietor of Sherman House, Main street, is quoted as saying that John Dougherty—lives in Steubenville, but does business in Burlington—"I am for the nominee."

Several other prominent Republicans were called upon, but unfortunately they were out. The INTELLIGENCER will take good care of the "fairly man" escapes, and will bump them in the gutter.
